Chapter 1 by Story Wars

"Mom!" I said. "There's a surfing competition at Beached Whale Bay on Saturday, can I enter?" My mom was reading the paper in the kitchen.

"What did you say honey?" My mom hadn't heard a thing of what I had just said.

"There's a surfing competition at Beached Whale Bay on Saturday's, can I enter?" I repeated.

"Oh, sure. You can enter." She said, still engrossed in the paper.

"Thanks mom!" I ran off to get ready.

My name is Summer. I'm 13 years old and I love surfing. Today was Thursday, so in 3 days I had the competition. I grabbed my messenger bag and jumped off my low balcony onto the beach. My family lives in Malibu on the beach. I ran all the way to the competition sign up stand.

"I want to enter Saturday's competition, please." I tell the person at the stand.

"Name." Asked the person.

"Summer Farland" I told her.

Chapter 2 by NoPhantom

The wave knocked me off the ship taking me to the competition, I only had my surfboard, and my messenger bag with some water, an extra towel, and some food in it.

Another wave come up behind me and basically swallowed me and my surfboard, and my bag. When we came up, I couldn't see land anywhere. My bag wriggled and my Chihuahua, Tutu, popped out.

"How did you get in there??" I asked her. Tutu just stared at me and shivered.

I started paddling randomly, to see if I could see land. After about 1/2 an hour, I saw a speck of land, but it was WAY different than anything I had ever seen. For one thing, it was pink. For another, as I got closer I could see trees, but instead of leaves I saw cotton candy.

I reached the pink beach and dragged my surfboard onto land. Tutu jumped off and ran to a tree and peed on it. As I looked around I told Tutu "I don't think we're in Malibu anymore, Tutu."
